NEWSLETTER AUGUST 2011

Dear Guests

The beauty of spring is upon us, and the lawns are turning green, and the trees are budding. The birds are singing, and it is indeed a truly wonderful time of the year.

The game has moved away from the Lodge, although I still see small herds of springbok, Zebra and red Hartebeest around. Most of the female antelope are pregnant, and will be calving in November. It is a worry for us, that we have not found any ostrich eggs, as they also produce towards the end of the year, (and usually in great abundance).

We are busy renovating the central swimming pool, and will shortly begin with the upgrade of the access road and parking area. The main buildings of the lodge are now fully air conditioned, and we are gradually installing air conditioning into all the rooms. This will, however, result in a price increase towards the end of the year. Despite our wonderful views, game and gardens, we remain presently one of the cheapest lodges.

We are also making an effort to have the entire rugby world cup screened on big screen at the Lodge, with special beer and biltong prices. Please support us if you are able to.

It is a necessity that we cull mainly male antelope, and this is being done in a very sensitive way, and being incorporated into our restaurant menu. Low fat, lean and fresh biltong is also available for purchase at the bar.

We are busy upgrading cutlery in our restaurant, and our new menu is due out in the near future.

Please continue to fill in your forms, as feed back from our valued clients is very important to us.

For those of you who are more fitness orientated, I would like to remind you of our hiking trail, which has been rated amongst the very best in South Africa. It covers a 24km route, and is based over a two day and two night period in the Drakensberg mountains, which you see to the west of us. The second day of hiking is all along the very edge of the escarpment that is visible from the lodge. There are wonderful waterfalls, pools and rushing mountain streams, and breathtaking views.

We also would like to remind you about horse trails and game viewing drives, which can be booked through the lodge.

We hope that you have a thrilling and very satisfying stay with us.

Our very best regards

Owners

June and Brian Wilson
